MISS LOIS MORSE

The Senior Class takes pride in dedicating this year-book to Miss Lois Morse, teacher and high school registrar, whose diligent service and untiring energy have won the admiration of those who have found inspiration in her high sense of duty and perfection.

Lois Morse

Good luck to you I have enjoyed working with you.

Silence! and through the silence and the dark
By that closed door, the distant sob of tears
Beats on my spirit, as on fairy shores,
The spectral sea; and through the sobbing — hark!
Down the fair-chambered corridors of years,
The quiet shutting, one by one of doors.

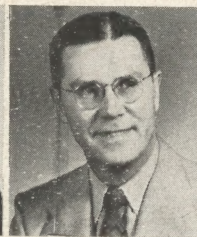

—H. Hagedorn.

Best wishes

enjoyed having you
in chorus. Sincerely,

We Pass On Numbered Steps

We pass on numbered steps which taken must be measured as they fall, For from the ebbing echoes of these silenced halls
We hear the footsteps which passed this door before.

We almost hear their youthful, beating hearts
Holding happy, hidden dreams —
Hearts that hope and wonder,
Souls that seek and wander,
As we laugh and dream and saunter on.

But well we know
That though our feet may never climb
these stairs again,
Though we escape these halls
The doors, slammed shut by the winds of fancy,
Have trapped a portion of our hearts inside
Left to mingle with the echoes.

SENIORS

At last it's done; the way is finished!
And twelve years now consummate in this—our graduation.
Oh, how we pursued that distant, glorious day;
Every game, every word was harnessed to the thought
That someday we would step forth as men and women!

But now we look behind;
We faintly recall the first years,
The sand table, and the colored chalk,
The rhymns we learned, and the stories we read,
And how when the lesson bored us
Our minds fled beyond the windows
And we heard the poetry of singing birds
And saw the splendor of the sunbeam shining down the aisle.

We pass over the years to the moment that brought us here
To this school, then strange and new.
But is she strange or new today?
We've grown within these walls and become a part of her!
Within these corridors, within these rooms,
We passed the weeks and months that constantly, silently enhanced our stature.

As memories reflected shroud the past in her peculiar cloak of fancy,
We hear the faintly fading footsteps,
The happy days, the things that made us laugh —
And at once we listen to the silence and the murmur of the things behind.
At last we pass beyond these doors
And with a certain sense of sadness we hear them
And after the latch snaps tight, barring us from the Fountain of Fellowship,
Only the sweet spring of recollection can give us drink.

Of The Past

This is a class history. However, it is not a tale of our failures and successes from our kindergarten days through this, our last year of high school. Instead it is intended to be a record of what has happened in the world since we first entered it.

We were born during the worst depression this country has ever witnessed, but for the most part it affected us very little. Our own recollections of it are concerned almost solely with the efforts of our government to bring the U.S. out of its dark days. One of the principal problems was unemployment; so after the National Rehabilitation Administration was formed, the C.C.C. and W.P.A. were organized almost immediately.

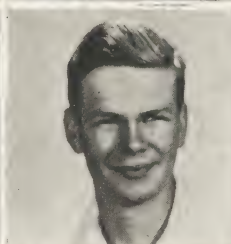

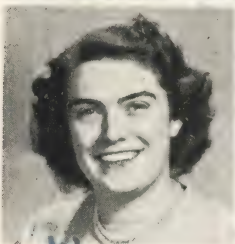

I am not bound to win, but ---- to be true.

While we were still youngsters, Franklin Delano Roosevelt ran successfully for re-election to the presidency. This was to occur twice again before his career was to be ended by death. Thus until that time—only two years ago—we knew but one president.

Modes of travel have been improved, and we no longer scoff or laugh derisively when scientists, who would have been labeled "crackpots" a few years ago, announce their intention of developing rockets capable of taking us to the moon. Yes, the world has gone a long way since we were born, but there is still a promising, almost limitless future before us. We are looking forward to it.

To The Future

This is a class prophecy, but even so it does not set forth in bold type that within ten years John will be President of the United States or Mary will be a Metropolitan Opera star. In fact it sets forth nothing at all boldly. Instead it seeks only to state in all humility some more likely, if not quite so startling, ideas about the uncertain future

The pessimists would have us believe that without the smallest shadow of a doubt the world and all that dwell thereupon will be blasted to eternity within a short time by the atomic bomb. But we are young, and youth is not pessimistic. We have no intention of placing lilies in our own hands and lying down upon the mossy turf to await The End. There are too many doors before us, and we are eager to begin trying them. We shall probably spend our next few years going from portal to portal, until we find the doors behind which lies work we love. Some of us will enter new fields, and a very few of us will find our search never ending.

Our ambitions are great. We yearn for nothing but the best, though we know that, no matter how great our effort" some of us will not reach the top. "We long to take the vapor threads of possibility that run from earth to heaven and weave them with the warp of days into realities."

The world is apt to smile knowingly at this point and remark that desires, ideals, ambitions—all are very well and good, but we shall soon find only the practical to be of worth; yet while we have thought of greatness and goodness, we have not left from our day-dreams the practical. We expect to work hard to realize their possibilities. Instead of bowing our heads and shrinking at the inescapable blows, which we have been advised life is going to deal us and our ambitions, we are standing straight and clinging with a firm grip to our ideals in brotherhood with the pine tree, which, though its feet are stuck in the ground does not lower its head from the clouds.

We are not boldly declaring that each of us is going to be famous. We are not even proclaiming that everyone of us is going to live a successful life. But we do demand our day-dreams and the right to attempt to realize their possibilities, for we believe it is better to have tried and failed than not to have tried at all—this to those who have consigned us and the world to our fate and have already begun to compose our dirge.

"By their fruit ye shall know them."

JUNIORS

We were Juniors then,
We who are Seniors now.
We've come to know this school,
But you can't know it — now.
You can't feel the current Surging upward from within our hearts.

You are only Juniors now,
Just as we were Juniors — then.
But with tomorrow, you too, will share this echo with us.
Oh, you smile and jest and take this lightly lightly,
But, you too, will listen for this echo.

For, Juniors, this school embraced our hopes —
Endeared them in the bosom of her presence.
She opened her heart to love in common fellowship
And turned our dreams to the life and breath of action.
She shut her doors upon darkness
And dispelled those mists and clouds with wisdom,
While on her hearth she breathed warmth into every dream that we shared with her.

La Verna

I really have enjoyed knowing you this year. I surely will miss you and surely next year. 2 think you're very sweet and I hope that you can do, after graduation, most the things that will make you most happy. May you find success in whatever you do.

Lovingly,
Hazel Keady

SOPH'S

We were Sophomores in '45,
But others have taken that place
While we gaze in wonder, half astonished,
At that hidden in the Future's veil —
And too in thought of those good things that we must leave behind.

Thus, Sophomores, the way of school will pass for you.
In your class you've entered at the entrance of the hall —
At the bottom of the stairway that looms o'erhead
You say you don't — "too much work,"
Or, "I wish I were a Senior."
As though at times by its very mass
It would fall and crush you in its volume.
For do you like this school?
But when you have walked this hall

You too will stop and look behind.
We sat in our classes and fretted
when teachers
(Cruel and inconsiderate — we thought) Assigned more work or gave harder tests than we liked.
Some said Silas Marner was a bore
And what Soph cared if all the polished words of the ancient Greek
Were buried with his bones?

Yet, now we pause; we sneak a look behind,
But, alas, the doors are closed!
Those days, we know, are gone!

Club Directory

GLEE CLUB—Directed by Mr. Wallace Gause, this year's G'ee Club, has been one of the school's best. For the first time C. H. S. had enteries in the District and State Contests. Also for the first time a Girls Chorus, a Boys Chorus and a separate Mixed Chorus were organized.

LIBRARY CLUB—Organized in 1945 and advised by Mrs. Bessie Crowell, the Library Club takes care of checking books and magazines in and out of the school library. The members, besides receiving one-third credit for a year's work, get the training for the job of librarian.

LOS GAUCHOS—In action since 1937, this club promotes a better understanding between Spanish speaking countries and our own. Headed by Senora Turner, its members have studied the histories of many of our South American neighbors. Its motto is "He who sleeps much, learns little."

KEY CLUB—Granted a charter in 1942, this chapter of the Key Club is advised by Mr. A. J. Blizel. All members must hold scholastic averages of 85 or better. Its purpose is to develop the character of those belonging to the club.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY—Started in 1937, this society embraces members who have held an average of 85 or more from the ninth grade up. Students are elected by virtue of their character and grades. Advisers are Miss Marguerite Morse and Miss Martha Kelley.

STUDENT COUNCIL—A seat on the Student Council is gained through an election at the beginning of the school year. Directed by Miss Kelley, the council has representatives from all classes. Its purposes are to give students a voice in school management, to let its members have some experiences in government, to form a place for interchange of ideas between students and faculty.

C-30 CLUB—The thirty members of this organization must possess the qualifications of loyalty, dependability and honesty. The purpose of the club is to promote closer fellowship among its members. Directed by Miss Amber Turner, the C-30's this year turned over to the school a much needed slide film projector.

MASQUE AND GAVEL—A part of the school since 1937, this dramatic gathering is sponsored by Miss Sarah De Kirkpatrick. The club is a recognition society for those interested in speech activities. Its purpose is to help those students who have some dramatic talent.

AQUA CLARA—A "Chatter" for seniors only was started in 1937, but was changed in 1940 into an annual for the whole school's enjoyment. Directing the business end is Miss Kirkpatrick, while Mrs. Knapp handles the literary end.

C. H. S. "CHATTER"—The school paper is published every two weeks by the journalism class reporters and staff and put to press in the school print shop by Mr. Meadows and his helpers. Teacher-adviser is Mrs. Edna Knapp.

QUILL AND SCROLL—This club is the Edna North Knapp Clearwater Chapter of the International Honor Society for High School Journalists. All initiates must have written forty or more inches for the "Chatter," have an average of 85 or better, or have been on the business staff of the paper. Adviser is Mrs. Knapp.

D. C. T.—All those who wish to belong to the Diversified Co-operative Training group must be sixteen years of age or over and have at least a "C" average. Directed by Mrs. Ruth Brubeck, this regular department of the school offers help to the student in picking his right vocation and also aids him in getting started in his chosen career.

F. L. S.—Formed in 1920 as a branch of the Y. W. C. A., F. L. S. stands for Faith, Loyalty and Service. Its purpose is to help in building its members characters. Its advisers are Miss Breeze and Miss Carol Avery.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB—Organized this year, the club, a chapter of the Future Homemakers of America, is advised by Miss Briggs and Miss Cameron. Its purpose is to reach subjects at the club meetings that can't be covered in school.

VETERANS CLUB—The Club, formed this year, is made up only of those who were formerly in some branch of the armed forces. Mr. David Sherman, a veteran, is its sponsor. The aim is to help the school in any way possible.

C-CLUB—Made up of all those who have earned a varsity letter from participating in some field of sport at C. H. S., the members of this athletic club are advised by Coach Weger and Coach Flanders.

SPORTS

Sports activities play an important part in school life. Team work, physical growth, and mental quickness are improved by participation in athletics. Members of the student body find pleasure in being a responsive audience to those games in which their teams take part.

This year, as never before, Clearwater High has entered whole heartedly into sports for girls and boys. The girls have organized active volley ball and basket ball teams under the direction of Miss Carolyn Avery, physical education teacher.

Coach Jake Weger and Coach Hugh Flanders, along with the boys, have devoted much time and effort toward producing football, basketball, softball, tennis, track, and swimming teams of which C. H. S. can readily be proud.

Football '46

The C. H. S. "Tornadoes", greatly improved over last year, won three games out of ten this season.

After losing the first three games of the season they rallied to overcome the Plant City "Planters" 30-12.

In an exciting "Homecoming" game, the team suffered defeat by Bradenton's "Golden Waves" 20-7.

Tarpon Springs won the next tilt, by one point, triumphing over Clearwater for the first time in 15 years.

After rising to win over Jesuit and F. M. A., the Tornadoes were trampled by Orlando 13-0.

The season's best played game was Thanksgiving day with St. Petersburg, Clearwater led at the half but the "Green Devils", with luck on their side, scored an extra point at the last minute, making the final score 7-6.
